Additional mail as replacement of presentation

Hi All,

I'll try to explain my suggestion for the 3rd and 4th meeting as brief as possible. My suggestions is to do an entire day of user tests on our projects. I could set up the video capturing facilities and allocate a few slots for various projects.

We can run around 3 user tests per project and focus on discovering some flaws in your system but also on simply testing one or a few specific task(s). It would be nice if we could be the lab rats for each others projects. We're probably not entirely matching the target audience but this will give us more understanding about each others projects for the upcoming meetings too. If you prefer to arrange your own testers, that's fine too.

The fourth meeting could be dedicated to watching a video summary of the tests back and discussing the improvements that could be made for each project.

Bottom line: who would be interested in using this opportunity to conduct some tests? We would ideally spend around 2 hours per project.

See the slides for some more information.

Cheers,

Bas

3rd and 4th UX community meetup proposal

Two meetings to support each other in conducting user tests

May: Preparing and conducting the tests
June: Sharing the results

An opportunity to Share what you are working on

Easily "recruit" participants
Optimise your tests
Capture your user tests
Be able to share them with your team
